

THE ONE BARREL AT A TIME CO-OP

Christine Boyajian

Christine Boyajian is a New Jersey native who enjoys baking, painting, listening to music, and being “green.” She is a recent graduate of the Art History program at Rutgers University in New Brunswick, NJ. She currently spends her time working for Christie’s in New York City and painting rain barrels for the Rutgers Cooperative Extension Water Resources Program. She has been commissioned to paint rain barrels for Campbell’s Soup, the Camden County Municipal Utilities Authority, the United States Environmental Protection Agency Region 2, and Rutgers University.

“Look Inside the Barrel” gives the viewer a glimpse into life inside the rain barrel. The scene includes rubber ducks, fish, a frog, a lone fisherman, a treasure chest, and a yellow submarine.
