

RAIN GARDEN COMING SOON...

This garden will be designed to intercept, treat, and infiltrate stormwater at the source, before it becomes runoff. It will include plants that are native to the region and will help retain contaminants that could otherwise harm nearby waterways.

Rain gardens are beautiful, low-maintenance, and inexpensive gardens that you can install at home.

For more information, please visit www.water.rutgers.edu

Support for this project has been provided by: Camden County Soil Conservation District, Rutgers Cooperative Extension Water Resources Program, Rutgers Cooperative Extension of Camden County, New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection, and the communities in the Cooper River Watershed.